Something Great

The trial was ended, the vigil past.
All clad in his arms was the knight at last,
The goodliest knight in the whole wide land,
With face that shone with a purpose grand.
The King looked on him with gracious eyes,
And said: "He is meet for some high emprise."
To himself he thought: "I will conquer fate.
I will surely die or do something great."

So from the palace he rode away;
There was trouble and need in the town that day;
A child had strayed from his mother's side
Into the woodland dark and wide.
"Help!" cried the mother with sorrow wild,
"Help me, sir knight, to seek my child;
The hungry wolves in the forest roam:
Help me to bring my lost one home!"

He shook her hand from his bridle rein.
"Alas! poor mother, you ask in vain,
Some meaner succor will do, maybe,
Some squire or varlet of low degree;
There are mighty wrongs in the world to right,
I keep my sword for a noble fight,
I am sad at heart for your baby's fate,
But I ride in haste to do something great."

One wintry night, when the sun was set,
A blind old man by the way he met;
"Now, good sir knight, for our lady's sake.
On a sightless wanderer pity take!
The wind blows cold and the sun is down,
Lead me, I pray, till I reach the town."
"Nay," said the knight; "I cannot wait;
I ride in haste to do something great."

So on he rode in his armor bright,
His sword all keen for the longed for fight.
"Laugh with us, laugh," cried the merry crowd.
"Oh weep!" wailed others with sorrow bowed.
"Help us!" the weak and weary prayed.
But for joy, nor grief, nor need he stayed.
And the years rolled on and his eyes grew dim,
And he died—and none made moan for him.

He missed the good that he might have done.
He missed the blessings he might have won.
Seeking some glorious task to find.
His eyes to all humbler work were blind.
He that is faithful in that which is least.
Is bidden to sit at the heavenly feast,
Yet men and women lament their fate,
If they be not called to do something great.

Friendship

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March, 2d, 1921.—The following is a part of a splendid address delivered by Dr. Albert H. Walker, president of the Florida State School for the Deaf and the Blind at the recent meeting of the Knights of Pythias, in the presence of President-Elect and Mrs. Warren G. Harding, who were guests of honor:

"A day for toil, an hour for sport,
But for a friend life is too short."

The theme of my short address will dwell upon a subject as old as humanity itself is old; a theme upon which kingdoms flourish when nourished by it; a theme upon which kingdoms fall and decay for lack of it, and this is FRIENDSHIP.

"Friendship, mysterious cement of the souls,
Sweetener of life, and soldier of society,
I owe thee much: thou hast deserved from me
Far, far beyond what I can ever pay."

In commemorating this the fifty-seventh anniversary of the birth of Pythianism, our hearts should force glorious hallelujahs to our lips for the great love-impulse which found lodgement in the heart and soul of that great man, our founder, Justus H. Rathbone, and, which developed and which rapidly bore an abundant harvest in the birth of this splendid order.

And at no time in the history of our country was there greater need of many clasping hand with fellowman in the everlasting ties of Friendship. A nation rent asunder in internecine strife, bleeding and prostrate after a four years' bitter strife. And all this in a land of freedom, more suited to a shepherd's song. But we were saved—and saved in large part through the great virtue of friendship—a friendship militant and strong—a friendship made doubly strong by the fraternal vows of this order. We were not saved by despair.

In 1864 the hungry and starving heart was fallow ground for the sowing of seeds of friendship in our country. Far-seeing and noble-visioned, our great founder took advantage of the opportunity to establish this great order which has ever thrived, and today, on its 57th birthday, stands bigger and broader and firmer than ever. The fire of enthusiasm in the order never burns to a glow; it ever remains a heaven-reaching flame, fed by the enthusiasm of this great band of exemplifiers of the sweet and sacred historical romance of Damon and Pythias; a romance based upon friendship, sublime interpreter of the human heart.

The bond of friendship in its ancient significance is the same emotion or sentiment as it is today. Friendship in the beginning of human creation is the same friendship we find today. It is characteristically and morally unchangeable. The same yesterday, today and forever.

From the time of the cruel tryrant Dionysius to the present day man has not added one cubic inch to his moral stature, nor a single musical note to the rhythmic beating of his heart. Some of the most beautiful idyls ever written were given to us over four thousand years ago, and how melodious are they with the sweet music of friendship! How eloquent with noble and impassioned speech! How full of the milk of human kindness! And our hearts beat today in unison with those idyls and romances of ancient years.

Thrusting the hand of friendship through the black clouds of despair makes for eternal happiness And so let us hug the great virtue of Friendship close to our breast as we go meandering upon the rugged highway of life—holding our eyes beyond the ever-burning stars—and praying daily for strength to disseminate this friendship to human hearts sorely in need of succor—friendship so beautiful and so satisfying!

We can not measure friendship. Out of the deepest recesses of every heart it can flow in unmeasurable torrents. Open then, brothers and friends, the well-springs of your hearts in daily contact with your fellowman, until out of the great abundance of friendship given, will roll back into your life the golden song of the Psalmist when he sings—

"I will walk within my house with a perfect heart."

St. Patrick's Day.

On the seventeenth day of March, Irishmen, wherever they are, unite in celebrating the festival of St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland. Green is everywhere in evidence—the shamrock, whenever it can be obtained—and eyes are bright and hearts tender with memories of the green Isle of Erin.

Of St. Patrick himself very little is known. It is not even certain whether March 17th is the date of his birth or of his death, or whether it is really the date of either event. According to the best authorities, he was born about 386 A. D, near Glastonbury, England; in his sixteenth year he was carried away by pirates to the north of Ireland, where he was sold as a slave. There he soon became a noted evangelist, and finally rose to the rank of Bishop. He founded three hundred and sixty-five churches and planted a school by the side of each church, and changed the people of Ireland from wild pagans to civilized Christians.

The most popular of the many legends concerning St Patrick is that which gives him credit for driving all the snakes and similar vermin out of Ireland. Here is an extract from one of the most popular of Irish songs which tells the story as it is current today.

"There's not a mile of Ireland's isle where the dirty vermin musters;
Where'er he put his dear forefoot he murdered them in clusters.
The toad went hop, the frogs went flop,
slap-dash into the water,
And the beasts committed suicide to save themselves from slaughter."

It is impossible to say when the seventeenth of March was set apart as St. Patrick's Day, and observed as the national festival of Ireland. But, however it may have started, the day has become a great popular holiday, not only in the Emerald Isle, but in every city where a crowd of Irishmen can be gathered to parade and to listen to addresses in praise of their birthplace. The shamrock is worn not only as Ireland's national flower, but also in commemoration of the fact that when St. Patrick was teaching the doctrine of the Trinity, he made use of this plant, bearing the leaves upon one stem, as a symbol of the great mystery.—From "Days and Deeds."

THE POSTAGE STAMP

The oldest postage stamp is just eighty years old, a mere stripling in the age of longevity.

Many a zealous collector of stamps has wished that his ancestors had had foresight enough to save specimens of all the stamps in their time, for had he such a collection now he would be wealthy and envied.

This does not mean that before 1841 there was no such thing as a postal system. The sending of letters by post had been inaugurated some centuries before. But prior to 1841 the sender of a letter did not have to affix a stamp to it nor pay any money to have it forwarded.

It was the recipient's privilege to pay the cost of postage or refuse to take the letter, as he saw fit. The system in operation before the introduction of postage stamps was very much like the sending of parcels by express collect.

Naturally it was bound to result in widespread cheating of the Government. In fact, under the old system, the operation of a postal department by a government was so unprofitable that even with a charge of as much as twenty-five cents for a domestic letter the Government was losing money.

A common method for cheating the Government was for the sender and the recipient of letters to arrange beforehand a method by which the latter would know the contents of the message without having to pay the cost of the postage.

It was the discovery of such a trick that led Sir Rowland Hill, an Englishman, to whom credit for the introduction of the postage stamp belongs, to agitate for the paying of the cost of postage by the sender.

While in a country tavern Sir Rowland heard an altercation between a postman and a servant girl. The postman had brought her a letter. After carefully scrutinizing the outside of the envelope she had returned the letter to the carrier, sadly announcing that she was unable to pay the necessary shilling.

Sir Rowland gallantly paid the cost and was surprised to see instead of a look of appreciation and gladness in the girl's face undoubted agitation. She delayed opening the letter, until finally his suspicions were aroused. Examination revealed that the letter contained only a blank sheet of paper; the message itself was faintly written in cipher on the outside of the envelope.

Indignant at such fraud Sir Rowland exposed the practice in 1837 in a pamphlet entitled "Post Office Reform," wherein he declared for the pay-as you send system as the only fair and practical one. Inaugurated in 1841, its adoption quickly became universal.

SOMETHING NOBODY KNOWS.

There are many apparently simple things that even the wisest men do not understand. Sir Joseph Thompson, speaking recently to the British Science Guild, gave a striking example for this.

He mentioned the well-known fact that wool after being wrung in water regains its former shape, while cotton does not. The cause of this, he said, is not known; and pointed out that possibly a fortune awaits the man who can find out the reason.

Another instance is that which Professor Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, recently gave at Toronto. The albatross, even when travelling against the wind, can overtake a ship without moving its wings. The flying of these birds is a problem of science, and no one can say how they can do it.—Selected.

AN APPEAL.

After five years of warfare, peace has come to us at last. But the war has had dire results for German deaf-mutes. Today the number of unemployed in Germany is greater than ever. In Berlin there are at the present time 400,000 unemployed, among whom, unfortunately, are many deaf-mutes. Moreover, in times of business depression, the latter are the first to be discharged by their employers and the last to be re-employed. Many have been out of work for many weeks, are without funds, and therefore must starve and die. The children of deaf-mute parents suffer most, due to the fact that during the war they were greatly undernourished and still very much underfed. The Christmas season is now approaching, but the deaf-mutes of Germany will not have an opportunity to celebrate the Yuletide festival.

I, therefore, most urgently request that American deaf-mutes respond readily to this very important appeal, and that they kindly send their contributions to me, which will be distributed indiscriminately among the needy and suffering mutes of Germany.

The low rate of exchange of the German mark will make it possible to distribute a considerably large sum to the local poor.

Trusting that this appeal will meet with a hearty response on the part of American deaf-mutes, I remain,

With friendly greetings,
Sincerely yours,

WILHELM GOTTWEISS,
Chairman of the Committee of German Deaf-Mutes.

Richmond, Va.

Mr. J. Painter returned Sunday night, February 27th, from Charlottsville, Va., where he had been visiting relatives for several days. His train arrived just in time for him to fill his appointment at First Baptist Church.

Mr. Arthur Tucker left Saturday night, February 26th, for Washington, D. C., where he had been invited by Rev. Bryant, the Baptist minister there, to lecture on Sunday. He reported a pleasant trip and enjoyed being with Washington friends again.

A Valentine party was held at First Baptist Church on February 14th, and "My sweet valentines" were all galore. A large crowd was on hand to take in the fun. Refreshments and candies were served.

On February 9th, a large crowd of friends gathered at Mrs. Hatcher's home, to give a surprise party for her. Early in the evening before anyone arrived Mrs. Barbour went over in her work clothes just to make believe everything was as usual—only a short call. But Mrs Hatcher, who knew nothing of what was to come off, started things rolling by suggesting that Mrs. B. go with her family on a visit. Mr. Hatcher, who was kind of slow getting his stiff collar and cuffs on, got a "hurry-up-there call from his wife, much like Maggie's work in bringing-up father," but there were no rolling-pins or glass pitchers broken over the poor fellow's head. Before they got away a couple came, and they kept on coming for the next half-hour. Mrs. Hatcher at this time began to feel strange and wondered what was coming off under her roof. When they gathered in the parlor, they pulled off some "my dear Gaston and dear Alphonso stuff," about who was to give the present away and make a short speech, etc., but finally Mr. Tucker got feeling bold and came forward with a nice presentation speech. Before leaving all wished Mrs. Hatcher many happy returns, and a good time was had by all present.

On the night of February 25th, an unexpected large crowd gathered at Mrs. A. Tucker's home to give her a surprise party. She was upstairs putting some of the babies to bed when they first began to arrive. On coming down she was surprised as usual, and received one or more presents from her many friends. Many old time games were indulged in and much merry-making was kept up until late in the night. The large crowd that was present made this one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season, and there has been a good many parties in Richmond lately.

The writer has noticed that the Chicago correspondent of the JOURNAL has been up and doing things with his pen and ink since he began writing a few months ago, and much Ring Lardner stuff is found in his columns. He looks everywhere from the Atlantic to the Pacific for interesting items, and he also does not hestitate to write everything he learns. Of course, this is none of my business, but he very often reminds me of the German Emperor, or ruler of all the fatherland, who thought he was going to do things some years ago by announcing to the world he was going to have a battle in which he would make all Europe tremble, only to tremble himself and end it all at the wood-pile or forest, where he is still sawing wood. Among some things our Chicago scribe wrote recently was about the former reporter being dead only to come alive again. Now, Mr. Editor, in this case you hold on to the present scribe, as we want live reporters, not dead ones. About those two fellows at Scranton, Pa., who turned bank bandits and got arrested, also discharged by the judge, I would say that not being able to say "Good morning Judge!" touched the Hon. Judge's heart, and you can bet your hat that there are thousands who would like to be deaf and dumb when they have to face the judge. Good luck to the Meaghers, and let us hear more from you and see what other "big guns" of Chicago you can make take a back seat and play second fiddle.

George Washington's birthday was celebrated here (his native State) on the night of February 23d, at the First Baptist Church, by a large and enthusiastic crowd who attended a party. A prize was given in a historic contest of George Washington, which was won by A. Tucker. Many other prizes were awarded in interesting games. Delicious refreshments were served and a good time was had. Mrs. R. Hatcher paid all expenses of this affair, and we all thank her for the generous way she entertained us all.

Mr. Noll, of Baltimore, Md., but who formerly lived in Richmond, has been here several days visiting friends.

Rev. O. J. Whildin, of Baltimore, was here Sunday, February 27th, and held services at the Episcopal Church in the evening. That night he was at the colored deaf church here to fill an appointment.

A large crowd of our deaf citizens attended the "made-in-Richmond" exposition, which was held here last week, and we saw many interesting sights. Anyone who doesn't know Richmond is on the map as one of the leading manufacturing cities of the sunny South, doesn't know much about America, and we would like for them to stop over this summer on their way to the Atlanta Convention and see this historic city. We are going to put in a bid for some of those conventions before long, then you can watch them come over.

A small delegation here are anticipating a good time March 4th, when they expect to be in Washington on inauguration day.

Well, so long friends, it may be be a long while before we have many more parties, but you will hear from us again soon.

H. L. B.

After a certain not very high level of material well-being has been reached, then the things that really count in life are the things of the spirit. Factories and railways are good up to a certain point; but courage and endurance, love of wife and child, love of home and country, love of lover for sweetheart, love of beauty in man's work and in nature, love and emulation of daring and of lofty endeavor, the homely workaday virtues and the heroic virtues—these are better still, and if they are lacking, no piled-up riches, no roaring, clanging industrialism, no feverish and many sided activity shall avail either the individual or the nation. I do not undervalue these things of a nation's body; I only desire that they shall not make us forget that besides the nation's body there is also the nation's soul.—Theodore Roosevelt.

When a Man Marries

When a man marries,
His trouble begins;
Buttoning waists
And putting in pins.

Looking at bonnets
To see if they're straight;
Ready to start,
Then having to wait.

Hunting for robbers
Under each bed;
Roused in the night
For a blanket to spread.

When the rain comes—
Though you're wrapped in repose,
Roused with a shout
The windows to close.

Summoned at morn
To start up the fire;
Get in the milk
In your scanty attire.

Run to the store
For the food you would eat,
Get in the ice
Ere it melts in the street.

Hurry to work,
Hurry back with your pay—
When a man marries,
So passes a day.

PITTSBURGH.

The Pittsburgh Social League had an interesting literary program at their Club rooms, Sunday evening, February 20th. Mr. F. R. Gray delivered a very instructive and lucid lecture on the doings of "The Post Office," and what he did not explain was not worth telling. He held the undivided interest of the good-sized audience for almost two hours and some clamored for more at the end.

There were "talks" by others who were present. Mrs. Keith was booked for a "talk," but she did not put in an appearance, much to the regret of the sixty or so who were present and expected something good from her. A hymn appropriate to the occasion was given by Misses Harmon and Beels in concert. This was beautifully rendered and every body was pleased.

The Social League also held forth with a "banquet," (they modestly called it a supper) at Kraemer's Atlantic Garden, Saturday evening, February 26th, and there was quite a respectable crowd present to discuss the viands and listen to after-dinner sapience of those who had something worth telling on their minds. The menu was substantial and satisfying. The "talks" were facetious and grave by turns, provocative of laughter and applause. The guests were Dr. Burt and Capt Manning; Mr. and Mrs. Bardes and G. M. Teegarden. There were about fifty participants present, and on the whole was a very pleasing and agreeable affair although there were no "swallow tails" or "snowy fronts" present. The ladies made up for the gentlemen's lack in dress however, as quite a few appeared in striking evening gowns. The affair was quite informal and more enjoyable on that account, perhaps.

The Basket-ball team of the Edgewood School is building up an enviable reputation this season for good clean sportsmanship. They have not won all their games, it is true, but they have contested with a number of topnotchers among the neighboring amateurs and scholastics, some of whom came with a string of successes only to be downed by the W. P. I. D. Five. The team went to Jeannette and played the strong "Internationals" and were downed by the Score of 36 to 23, on the 26th ult. They made up for this defeat by taking a game from the husky "Hiland Athletics," of East Liberty, who had a string of thirteen victories and no defeats, by the score of 33 to 21, on March 1st. The defeated teams have invariably given the deaf boys much credit for their plucky and clean playing and ask for more games.

At Jeannette the boys met Felix Hogenmiller of that place and his brother Louis of Bedford, and learned from them that they had lately lost their mother, who died at the age of 96 years. She was laid to rest in Greensburg on the 24th ult.

Mr. J. W. Baker has had his troubles augmented the past few months. He has had to undergo several severe operations and spend many weeks at the hospital. We were glad to see him out among his friends again altho the effects of his malady were apparent; for one thing, his hair is as white as driven snow. He is, however, gaining strength, and it is to be hoped he will soon be exhibiting his old-time activities.

Mr. Andrew Donaldson, the veteran portrait artist, was observed among the guests at the League banquet looking hale and hearty.

Samuel Woodside, son of Mrs. and the late Archibald Woodside of Wilkinsburg, it is learned has been confined at Mercy Hospital for some time, suffering with a complication of troubles. He is in a serious condition, but there is hope of his recovery. His brother William, of St. Louis, came to see him.

The stork cards announce the arrival of Francis, Jr., February 26th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Holliday, of Duquesne Heights, and their cup of joy is full. Congratulations are flying thither from all sides.

ANTICIPATIONS of a rare literary treat in the way of a "talk" from Mrs. Jay C. Howard, of Duluth, Minn., have been shattered by the sudden departure of that lady for her Minnesota home, occasioned by a message announcing the death of her father. While New York friends are disappointed at the cancellation of the plans to have Mrs. Howard address them from the platform at St. Ann's Guild House, they have for her the most sincere sympathy in her bereavement. Her New York friends had in active preparation a social function in her honor, not only because they were her friends, but also because they recognize her as one of the really brilliant, intellectually prominent, and socially accomplished deaf ladies of the country.

At Gallaudet College, Mrs. Howard, then Miss Petra Fandrem, won an enviable reputation as a speaker, and those who saw her on the platform at Detroit last summer were splendidly entertained. Mrs. Howard is not totally deaf, but has the good fortune to enjoy hearing to such an extent that she is thoroughly at home with the normally endowed, while at the same time what she gained as a student at the Minnesota School for the Deaf and at Gallaudet, makes her to the manor born with the Deaf. On the platform Mrs. Howard speaks with a clear, clean-cut delivery, that stands out with silhouette fidelity.

We sincerely hope that in the not far distant future Mrs. Howard will be enabled to make us another visit, and fulfill, in a meaure at least, the promises of the intellectual treat of which we were so sadly deprived.

THE EDITOR of the JOURNAL has received from Mr. J. B. Showalter, of Columbus, Ohio, the following contributions in aid of the suffering "Mute" children made destitute by the European war.

It is specified that the total amount be equally divided and forwarded to to Austria, Poland, Germany and Turkey, respectively.

We shall endeavor to carry out the wishes of the donors, and have the money reach responsible hands for distribution. To all who apprehend the awful conditions that exist in the aforementioned countries, there can be no truer charity than extending this modicum of relief. In our own blessed country, where want is practically non-existent, the helping hand and open purse should be universal. The silent plea of the starving and the dying, and the brotherhood of the common misfortune of deafness, knows no nationality, and each of us can say to ourselves in all true humility of spirit, "Am I not my brother's keeper."

CHICAGO.

They once fed deaf folks to the crocodile
That basked on banks of Ganges and the Nile
Today we're known as an authority
On such erudite things as chemistry.

Another triumph for a deaf man. Recognized as one of the best in his profession, in the nation that leads the world in that line.

The American Rolling Mill Co., Middleton, Ohio, has issued a 220-page authoritative treatise in limp Karotel binding, $4 per copy, entitled "Research and Methods of Analysis of Iron and Steel." Among the list of authorities in the various processes appears the name of a Chicagoan.

"Dr. George Dougherty's Method for Determination of Vanadium in Steel."

Dr. Dougherty has for over 25 years served as chemist in the Indiana Harbor plant of one of the big steel firms. His scientific articles have repeatedly appeared in their house organ, and elsewhere.

Dr. Dougherty, who was the first secretary of the N. A. D., is the big man in Pas-a-Pas circles. Quiet, unassuming, one would never take him at first sight for a man who has done so much for the furtherance of civilization as to invent the best accepted method of determining the amount of vanadium in steel (Vanadium is the mineral that allows the steel springs on your auto to bend without breaking)

Moral: You can never tell.

Father Mahan cancelled his Feb. 26 lecture at the Pas-a-Pas Club, owing to conflicting dates, so Mrs. Fred Young, a bright young graduate of the Belleville school in Canada, substituted with a clear, graphic reading of "The Marshal."

That Akron news-letter, giving several staple jokes in Goodyear silent circles, led Joe Wondra to go them one better. Joe says he saw six crows in a tree, and fired again and again, but while five crows flew away one remained perched on his limb until Joe gave up and went home. Answers to the riddle are plentiful—revolvers only fire five shots; bird was dead; stuffed bird; bird was tied to tree, etc. All wrong. Joe explains it in two signs—"Crow deaf-dumb."

GALLAUDET COLLEGE.

On Wednesday afternoon, February 23d, the residents of the Green witnessed a warmly fought basket-ball game by two Co-ed teams styled the Buff and the Blue. The teams had been as evenly matched as possible. Towards four o'clock the Co-eds trooped in two snake-lines from Fowler Hall to Gymnasium Hall. The Blues came out wearing blue ribbons, blue caps, blue wearing apparel and bearing aloft a blue banner. The Buffs made quite as brave a spectacle and presented as generous a display of buff. The zeal of a certain male Sophomore had enabled him to recruit a base drum for the Buff side.

In the gymnasuim the male element of the College split likewise, many for more or less obvious reasons, going over to the Blues and as many over to the Buffs.

Cheered on by the rooters both sextets came in desirous of clinching the victory. In the beginning it looked like a Buff affair. But the Blues came up. Through the greater part of the three periods the score was pretty close. Most of the time the Blues led by a slender margin. During the last two minutes of playing the Buffs again gained the lead, and won the game by 15 to 13.

On the Buff side Miss LeClerc's excellent shooting and Miss Sowell's able guarding were in a large measure the cause of victory. Miss F. Lewis, of the Blues, did some quick passing, and Miss Bible surprised all by caging almost all her team's points.

In a return game, played in the college gymnasium on Saturday, February 26th, the Co-ed basket-ball team met the National Park Seminary Sextet. The visitors proved a difficult combination for the Co-eds, due in a large measure to their visitors' advantage in size. Besides the Co-eds had to do without a few of their best players who had sustained injuries during the Wednesday game. As in the earlier game the visitors came off triumphant, this time by a count of 24 to 13.

The Varsity Basket Ball team returned from its northern trip late Tuesday night. Out of five games played it won two. These were the games against the Silent Stars, of Philadelphia, Pa., and the Men's Club of St. Ann's Church in New York City. The results of the first games, at Collegeville, Pa., against Ursinus, did not come as a surprise. Ursinus has been winning games against stronger combinations than that of Gallaudet. The Philadelphia game was attended with some difficulties as the Silents preferred to play under professional rules, for which the Gallaudet team was not prepared. The first half of the game went against us. But in the second period, played under Amateur Athletic rules, Gallaudet walked off with the victory. The results of the exhibition game played against the Fanwood team came as a surprise to the students. However, the coach and players, upon their return, accounted for it by their extremely poor playing and probably over-confidence. The game against the Men's Club proved that the team had not played true to form when it met the Fanwood boys. The Fordham game was a bad one for Gallaudet as was likewise the St. John's game, played in Brooklyn. The team was particularly handicapped in the latter game. Both Bouchard and Danofsky were on the injured list and another player had been dismissed. Present indications are that extended trips will be discouraged hereafter. The players, manager and coach, all reported that that they had been extremely well treated by the Philadelphia and New York Silents, and appreciated it highly.

The Track team, led by Manager Rosen, '21, entered the lists at the Johns Hopkins Indoor Meet in Baltimore, on Saturday night, February 26th. The meet took place in the 5th Regiment Armory. At first it seemed as if Gallaudet would not be placed, but finally the relay team was pitted against the Harrisburg Institute, of Pennsylvania. Over them the relay won easily. The team, composed of Matthew, '21 (Captain); Connor, '23; Harmon, '21; and Randall, '21; received a gold medal. Its time was 3.46, the best time for a mile relay at the meet, though several of the largest eastern universities were participating. Connor, in the 440-yard dash, also did commendably, coming out fifth of twenty men. Placed in the last line, he was continually impeded by the men ahead. Manager Rosen intends to have his men show at the Catholic University Indoor Meet next Saturday. The team is expected to make as good if not a better showing there.

On Sunday afternoon, February 27th, Prof. Harley Drake delivered an impressive sermon on "The Big Christian"—the broad-minded, even-tempered, tactful man or woman.

Manager May, of the Basket-ball team, had arranged for a game with the Y. M. C. A. Arrows, a local aggregation, for Saturday evening, February 26th, but on account of the team's bad condition it was cancelled. This was to be the last game of the season, excepting the one against Susquehanna University, which was also cancelled earlier in the season at their request. Thus basket-ball makes its formal exit, giving way to base-ball. Before the snowfall recently, some enthusiasts brought out their bats and mits and began to do some light work. With the disappearance of the snow the officials will proceed immediately to mold Gallaudet's coming nine and get it ready for actual games as soon as possible.

Practically the whole of the Student body saw President Harding inangurated on Friday, March 4th. Many of them had gone to the scene as early as 9 o'clock and so obtained places in the first lines against the ropes. From there they were able to see plainly the whole of the historic proceeding. It was an ideal day. Although the inauguration was more simple than those of late years it was no whit less inspiring. What was lost in pomp and military display was made up for by the momentousness of the occasion. President Harding spoke for about thirty-five minutes.

On Sunday afternoon Mr. Herbert Call, Secretary of the American Peace Society, gave a talk in Chapel Hall. He spoke interestingly on the different sources of energy, passing from these found in the physical world to those in the intellectual and spiritual life.

Mr. Gordon Kannapell, '21, was stricken with appendicitis on Saturday, March 5th, and on the following day was forced to undergo an operation at the Sibley hospital. Reports arrived at the college that the operation was successful and he is on the road to recovery.

The Co-eds, in their last game of the season, defeated George Washington University's Sextet by 19 to 16. The game was played at the Epiphany gymnasium. Miss LeClere, P. C., was the star on the offensive, scoring 14 of her team's 19 points. A resume of this season shows an unusually good record. The Preparatory Class supplied several of the best players. Miss F. Lewis, '21, captain and center, proved one of the mainstays of her team by her consistently good passing.

At a recent meeting of the Athletic Association rollcalls for baseball and tennis players were sounded. Both received a generous response. Probably at no other time has such a large number of tennis euthusiasts appeared.

At the Catholic University Indoor Meet, on Thursday night, March 3d, Gallaudet's relay team ran against a team representive Delaware College. Gallaudet's runners were barely defeated by Delaware. Randall, Gallaudet's anchor man, finished only a few yards behind Delaware's. The Delaware team, however, was a strong combination and Gallaudet made them work for their victory.

Members of the wrestling team may enter the A. A. U.'s wrestling meet, to be held at Baltimore, March 26th. They will have to through a preliminary match in this city to prove themselves worthy of participating. Considering the steady training they have been receiving during the last few months, a few of the best ought to qualify.

FANWOOD.

Sonnia Roven, the forward star of Fanwood's girl team, was chosen as captain of the team.

An exceedingly thrilling basket ball game, between the Quintet of the Scudder Private School for Girls and the Fanwood Girl Seniors, took place Friday afternoon, February 25th, in the gymnasium.

The court was packed with Scudder girls and Fanwood pupils. The smaller boys could not afford to lose the game, so they stood and watched it through three windows.

For first time in the Fanwood's history the girls played a game with an outside team, and trounced them.

The Scudder team had previously won a number of games and lost none. The score was 10 to 6 in the favor of Scudders, when the first half ended. In the first half, the girls of Fanwood seemed to be over anxious, because they were not accustomed to playing with outsiders; but when the second half opened, our girls developed speed that caused a thrilling battle. Sarah Jacobs and Thursia La Mour were sensational players and piled up a number of goals. Sonnie Roven led the team to attack and kept the opponents in check. When the whistle sounded, the count stood 16 to 12, in favor of the girls of Fanwood. Anna Hoffman, the guard star, had to leave the game because of personal fouls. Wilhelmena Gantt and Anna Hoffman played skillfully in their positions.

The line-up and summary:

Scudder's Girls (12)		Fanwood's Girls(16)
Hoadley	L. F.	Roven, Capt.
McDonald	R. F.	Jacobs
Feldman	C.	LaMour
Harper	L. G.	Hoffman
Hanley	R. G.	Gantt

Field Goals. Scudders—Hoadley 1, McDonald 2, Feldman 3. Fanwood—LaMour 4, Jacobs 3.

Foul Goals. Fanwood—LaMour 2; Personal Fouls—Fanwood 1.

Substitutions: Fanwood—Brennison for Hoffman.

Referee, Miss L. Gilpin, of Colombia University; Umpire, Miss Bilhuber, of Columbia University and Scudder; Timekeepers, Miss Holmes, of Scudder, and Cadet Drum Major M. Steinberg; Scorers, Miss Crun and Cadet Corporal Ederheimer.

The basket ball results of last week's games are as follows:

On February 25th, the "Tom" Quintet defeated the "Mike" Five, 33 to 9.

On March 1st, the "Lou" tossers won over the "Eddie" team, 23 to 21.

A Special Meeting of the Fanwood Athletic Association was held in the Boys' Study Hall on the evening of March 1st.

Manager Lux, our Physical Director, announced that the School's silver medals will be awarded to each player of "Tom" Five and a substitute player, under the captaincy of Cadet First Sergeant Tom Whalen, for first place; medals to each of "Lou" players, captained by Cadet Captain Louis Cassinelli, for second place.

The winners of the N. Y. I. D. Silven Medals are Tom Whalen, Captain, Benny Shafranek, James Stewart, Joseph Mazzola, Samuel Zadra and Lester Cahill. The winners of the N. Y. I. D. Mr. Fred T. J. Boal, of Canada, and a missionary to the deaf, paid an afternoon visit to this school. Mr. Boal will return to Canada in the near future.

Cadet Rudolph Behrens, a leader of the Houston Silents Club, was the recipient of 18 cents from his club-fellows, on his birthday. The 18 cents represented the eighteen years of Rudolph's age. He received five big cakes from his relatives, and he gave a piece of them to each of the members of the club and also to some of his friends.

The Protean and Adrastian Societies had a social and a little birthday party last Wednesday evening. The Adrastian members arranged the table decorations beautifully.

It was to commemorate the birthdays of Cadet Lieut. A. Lichtblau and Cadet First Sergeant Tommy Whalen.

After the party, games and dancing were indulged in.

Cadet Lieutenant John Spellman is now confined to a bed at St. Luke's Hospital, recuperating from an operation for hernia.

Cadet Walton Oehm, who has weak sight, is at the same hospital. His left eye has been operated on for cataract.

Dr. Hutchinson, of the Board of Health, made a physicial examination of the pupils on Thursday morning.

SCENE 2. Washington and the gypsy.

The debate was won by the negative side.

The two classes deserved much credit for their play.

Arthur Jensen, who impersonated George Washington, and Albert McKay, who acted as Lord Fairfax, were real stars.

Dorothy Jackson, a colored girl, sang a beautiful song in the sign-language.

Dr. Fox discoursed upon "Simplicity" at the Sunday morning service. In the afternoon Mr. F. Thomason had for his text "Value of the Truth."

OREGON.

Bird Craven was transferred to another machine at the cooperage February 19th, and unfamiliarity with the operation occasioned an accident cutting off the flesh on top of the middle joint of the index finger on the left hand. Three stitches were necessary. Knives on a disk shaver, move at such speed that spacing is difficult for the novice. Guards were unprovided. Bird is in line to receive compensation from the State Industrial Commission.

C. H. Linde has a registered fox hound for sale and delivery by registered mail, airplane, express, parcel post, or boat or rail freight. It is a playful youngster, buff, with silky hair. The address is 380 East 27th Avenue, North Portland, Oregon.

Mrs. J. A. Fisher has embarked on the poultry and egg business. She has a mixed flock for meat and pure-bred anconas for egg production. Notice the dollars rolling in and the opulent supercilious actions of new-rich.

Sanford W. Spratlen, after experiencing reverses in the fire of a good pool hall, business unemployment and change of work, still manages to possess his own home, with a wife, Lorena Officer of Kansas, and a eight-year-old daughter, and a Ford.

A movement is being conducted to establish a State Association of the Deaf in Oregon. It is proposed to admit to membership not only the alumni or ex-alumni of the Oregon schools for the deaf, but all the deaf residing in the State. Information will be given out in the future through correspondence and newspaper publicity whenever possible, and it is hoped to get every thing ready by early summer. Get behind the movement, ye old or ye young, and help along this most necessary and commendable enterprise. An opportunity to meet each other once in two or three years, to renew friendship, to help each other, to work together in a common cause for the general welfare, to learn news very often otherwise unobtainable, to give the lonely or unmated a chance to make acquaintance that may be permanent and happy, would be prized by all of us. Tell the news to those of your friends who may not know, and watch this column for further notices and details.

Bruce Hewitt, of Holton, Kansas, tells this story: Two impostors were caught there. One was returned to another town to serve out an unfinished sentence. The other was put on the rock pile for many a day. On his release he wrote on a pad a question as to train time for St. Joseph, Mo. The police officer gave the time as two hours later, and handed him a cigar. The train just then whistled. Cigar and match were dropped in consternation and the fake bolted for the depot, half a block away!

Mr. W. S. Hunter, teacher in the Vancouver, Wash., State School for the Deaf, was autoing parties between the School and the end of the car line to Portland February 12th. On the last trip, about 1 A.M. on going home than through the barracks, he was blinded by the glare from an approaching auto and knocked down a man and wife walking on the street. Mr. Hunter stopped and got out, but the other auto never hesitated and faded into the black night. The woman was carried into the auto, seemingly not much hurt, and Mr. H. cranked his engine to start, but was told that her husband was under the auto. The man was partly unconscious and had one leg broken in two places below the knee. He was dragged out with difficulty. Mr. Hunter wanted to take them to a hospital, but they insisted on going home. A doctor allowed the woman to stay at home, but had the man taken to a hospital for intelligent care. Why is the law against blinding headlights on autos not enforced. The man went through the war without any wound and had medals for extraordinary conduct.

Messrs. William Livingstone and Gus Priest were fording round a crossing of two streets February 17, when another Ford cutting diagonally across, ran into the first. Miraculously no damage was done.

Selma Hagen says her mind is is rusting. She is responsible for a good many of these items.

The Convention Fund Club ments erery two weeks at the homes of the members in rotation. As all the members are women the fund grows, and Portland won't be ashamed of her entertainment of guests at her 1925 World's Exposition.

The Rev J. A. C. Beyer holds service for the deaf every Sunday at 2:30 P.M. in Trinity Lutheran Church, Ivy and Rodney.

The basket ball team of the local N. F. S. D., came back February 14, from a week's tour of the Coos Bay district. The results given to the reporter are Reedsport, 22, Frats, 35; North Bend, 14, Frats, 57; Morshfield, 25, Frats, 28; Myrtle Point, 22, Frats, 38; Coquelle, 31, Frats, 29. The Southwestern Oregon daily gives the Morshfield game as won by Morshfield with a score of 25 to 21. Another paper gives the North Bend game as 14 to 50.

Frank Thayer was manager and substitute Dana Acuff was captain and center; Cortland Greenwald, coach and guard; George Bauer, guard, and George Fromm and Orva Duce forwards. Duce led in points, with Acuff and Bauer following. Fromm was best all-around player.

H. Wenger, coach of the Utah School for the Deaf, telegraphed Secretary Reichle, of the local Frats February 7th, for a game with the Portland Five, after their game with Pendleton on February 24th, but the idea was abandoned.

Mabel L. Scanlon Linde was a year old—or older—on Friday, February 18th. Her friends swooped on her that day with a surprise party. The exact is age—well, the reporter is not nervy or husky, but she keeps well on the side of twen—er, thirty.

Mayor Baker will address the deaf of Portland, under the auspices of the local Frats, at the Central Library, March 19th, and explain how he secured the Shriners Convention for Portland in 1920. Bring a Shriner, possibly he can get the Shriners all over the country to help corral the Conventions of the Frats and N. A. D. for Portland in 1925, at the time of the World's Atlantic Pacific Highways and Hydroelectric Exposition. Supt. Geo. F. Lloyd will interpret.

The Disciples of church issues a monthly organ called "World Call." In the January issues appears an article on two Sunday school classes in Akron, Ohio, of deaf-mutes under the Superintendency of Miss Mina Burt, the Good-years meeting in the East Market Street church of Christ and the Firestones in the South Akron Christian Church. The officers of the first named class are given as Grover C. Farquhar, President; Sam Stakley, Treasurer; Veda Myers, Secretary. The article is illustrated with a good photo of the first named class.

D. C. Brown, Illinois youngster of '79, saw every thing going on. Operation on both eyes for cataract renewed his sight so he can boast of seeing where younger eyes fail.

Mrs. Elkus came over from Alderwood Manor, Wash., the far famed new community center of brains, egg production, unrivalled, and filbert growing.

Miss Cleo Vineyard was over from the Salem School for the week-end.

Edwin Hill is working in a lumber mill near Baker.

Jack Bertram is doing something to help along the movement for a State Association of the Deaf in Oregon. He told the audience at the masquerade, he had written to Supt. Tillinghast, of the Salem School, asking for the use of the school July 2, 3, 4, and 5, for the convention. He urged every one to tell his friends.

Portland hospitality is akin to the hospitality of the old-fashioned Southern plantation. Everything is yours. But entertainment during the 1925 exposition will be a memory for years to come. Just ask any Shriner about his experiences here in 1920.

XAVIER ALLIED NOTES

Joseph Graham, official usher at X. E. S. services, invited his 5 feet 3½ inches of personality to the rostrum last Sunday, in the role of censorium. The gist of his admonition was directed to the younger element, who rarely if ever seek a front seat, so that they can better indulge in their penchant for whispering. His vigorous protest caused all present to blink, and like the hero in a mellerdrammer, "Joe's" popularity jumped several points in the estimation of Ephphetans.

A seating capacity was in evidence. Father Dalton had much to say outside the announcement of a coming week's Mission, which Rev. Henry Moeller, S. J., of St. Louis University, would give from April 24th to May 1st He hoped all would co-operate in an effort to make the Mission a success. Benediction followed.

President Cosgrove and his X. E. S. cabinet convened immediately after in the president's office, and were naturally elated at the treasurer's report of a cash reserve of $1,877 and a package of W. S. S. Sunday school work, as well as adult missionary work among the deaf, called for an outlay of $60. Miss Lamberson, treasurer, predicted a steady addition to the account and the active membership roll from now on. Some 15 new candidates were added to the roster.

With the approbation of Rev. Director, who was consulted at the outset, Matty Higgins, as promoter and manager of the athletic side of the Xavier Allied forces, gave a terse resume of prospects ahead For the present, the St. Vincent A. A. will be the legal title of the organization, which made its debut a short time ago with a basketball victory. Higgins stated baseball, football, and other sports would be encouraged and fostered, and hopes were bright the Vincentians would have the use of club quarters in the hear future. He asked cooperation of all, and eventually he hoped to see the organization merge into the Xavier Silent A. A.

Among those exhibiting painting and sculpture at the exhibition of the Independent Artists' Society being held during the week of Februray 26th to March 4th at the Waldorf Astoria, is our own Jacques Alexander.

His painting, the "Homeless Musician," portraying an elderly musician wending his way in a snow storm, is one of the best at the show. In fact it is a stinging rebuke to those angular smears and daubs of the cubists, futurists, etc. At a private view last Friday evening several deaf men visited the exhibition and were a unit in expressing its merits.

March 5, 1921.—The Advance Society held its monthly meeting on the evening of March 1st, in the library of the school. After routine business, reports of the various committees of the Valentine Social were given and accepted. Owing to the absence of the Chairman of the General Committee the exact total receipts and expenditures of the social could not be arrived at. Treasurer Ohlemacher, however, estimates the former at $416, and the latter about $190. It is expected that the net receipts will have several additions yet to be handed in. The money goes to the building fund.

Mrs. Callison, Misses Kraus, Uhl and others, were given a vote of thanks for their activity in the sale of tickets. So also was the chairman of the general committee, Mr. Schwartz, for his work in making the social a success, and all those who contributed money and edibles, and Mr. Wm. Mayer for his contribution of two cockerels, which as reported last week brought in nine dollars by auction.

Mr August Beckert was delegated to secure a flowering plant and present it to Mr. Ernest Zell, a member, who has been confined to his home for some time by illness.

The Society voted to contribute twenty dollars to the Thomas H. Gallaudet replica.

Messrs Clum, Zorn and Beckert, were appointed for the May 30th picnic, at the Home, to act with one from the Ladies' Aid Society. It is proposed that the latter arrange and provide for the dinner, while the Advance Society looks after the sale of drinks, ice-cream, games, etc., in the afternoon.

After some talks by members on the topics of the day, adjournment was made to April 5th. Several months ago, surveys of the school here were made by several departments of State. This week that of Public Instruction was received, signed by Mr. E. B. Hawes, Certification Clerk, and Mr. George R. Twiss, High School Inspector. The salient points in its conclusions are:—

"Before making definite recommendations, I wish to commend the school in many particulars. The school as a whole in appearance and presentation could not be better. The management is highly efficient; the discipline and school life excells that of most schools There is a sufficient number of teachers, which is unusual in any institution. There are a few teachers doing most excellent work and many teachers doing good work. The school equipment in general is sufficient for its needs.

My specific recommendations are:

1. The school should be located near the center of the state. Good farming land should be chosen, so that agriculture may be successfully and profitably taught.

2. All pupils should be housed in cottages rather than in dormitories.

3. The school, the hospital, and the administrative offices should be in separate buildings

4. The school curriculum should be constructed to include the regular four-year high school course.

5 Oral pupils should be segregated and should not be taught by manual teachers at any time.

6. Teachers should receive a salary commensurate with the work they are doing. The salary should be greater by $150 to $500 than that of a similar position in the nearest public school

7. The teachers in all institutions should be regularly certificated, and in addition should be especially trained for their work.

8. There should be a supervisor for each division of the educational system, and most especially for vocational courses.

9. All vocational courses should be organized to develop skill, knowledge, and initiative. Each pupil should be permitted to choose his own project.

10. Agriculture should constitute a great share of the vocational studies, as farming offers pleasant, protective, and profitable employment.

11. Boys and girls should attend their local school for the deaf, if it is possible, and so remain at home. during the week end.

12. There should be a revision of the truancy law, making it compulsory for all deaf from the age of 6 to 18 inclusive, to attend some where a school for the deaf. They should be permitted to attend school until they graduate or reach the age of 21. Ohio has such a law.

13. A three-year training course for teachers should be established. The courses could be given in large part at the Ohio State University. The senior year should be spent in residence at the State School for the Deaf.

14. There should be a state supervisor for all schools authorized under Section 7755 of the General School Code, who could also have supervision of all state school, doing similar work.

15. There should be a boarding school established for deaf children under school age, in order that speech, lip reading, and the power of thought may be more rapidly developed and so facilitate the early return of pupils to their home communities for the benefit of local schooling and parental care.

Active and Associate members were present in fall force at the annual reception to incoming and outgoing officers, last Friday evening from 7 to 10 o'clock. Seventy-five in all were present, including several invited Junior and Senior High School Girls. Gentlemen were excluded except Superintendent Jones, who was present for a short time. Games occupied part of the evening, and prizes were awarded to winners and losers, and after them came refreshments made up of sandwiches, pickles, ice-cream, cake and coffee. All present voted it to have been a very pleasant affair.

Miss Elsie Kenney, who went South early in January because of her health, resumed her work in the class room March 1st. While down there, she visited the Florida School for the Deaf at St. Augustine, and found the location and the school fine. Miss Kenney looks the better for her two months' respite, no doubt due to the sunshine and ocean breezes of the flowery state.

March came in like a lamb, and has behaved admirably so far, with a heavy downpour of rain most of this forenoon followed by sunshine and warm spring weather in the afternoon.

Rev. C. W. Charles had a large attendance at his service in this city last Sunday. He baptized Mrs. Mary D. Gillespie and the children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Robinson.

NORFOLK, VA.

Mrs. Ida Smith, a former resident of Norfolk, who was recently residing in Durham, N. C., is now back in Norfolk and is staying with her two married daughters, Mrs. Robinson, and Mrs. Taylor.

Mr. Peter T. Ray has returned to Portsmouth, and is staying with his son. His wife, who has been recuperating from an illness, while away in Philadelphia, is expected any day now.

Many of the deaf-mutes of Norfolk and vicinity have taken on a very different look lately. This is owing to several of them taking treatments at the office of Dr. E. C. Campbell, who is now open for business. His specialty is the medicated baths that he owns, and he also has many hearing patients.

Dr. Campbell's mail daily bring in repeat orders from many of his old customers of Akron, Ohio, and other places.

We are sorry to relate the news of the death of Mrs. Chas. A. Bruce, who passed away a few weeks ago. She was well known among the deaf of Virginia, and her loss will be felt by all those who knew her.

We noticed in the last issue of the whereabouts of Mr. Earle Butt, and so we wish to let it be known that Mr. Butt is now located in Durham, N. C., having stopped over in Norfolk just long enough to renew acquaintances.

Edward D. Campbell is the name of the new member of the Campbell family. He saw the light on January 4th. Mary Francis is glad to have a playmate now.

Mr. Thomas L. Jenkins was away for a few days lately, and nobody knew his whereabouts until he returned, and it was found that he was on a visit to several places in the Tar Heel State (North Carolina) Tom certainly had a good time.

Having heard of the successful organizing of a Frat Division in Richmond, Virginia, the deaf of this vicinity have gotten together and are trying to do likewise. So far there have been twelve applicants, and the applications, together with a request for a Charter, are now on its way to Chicago. More will be said later about this organization, when we receive our status.

Mr. William Blessing, of Harrisburg, Pa., was here for a two weeks vacation recently.

A new enterprise has been opened here by two deaf-mutes. They are W. H. Stallings and West. They have formed a carpentry business. Judging from the orders they have taken in so far, it appears they are doing some good business, despite the bad times and carpenters' strike we are having here.

The unsettled conditions has caused us to lose a few of our friends here. The latest to leave us is the Liggan family, who have gone back to Richmond. We all hope to see them again, after things pick up.

Rooms have been so hard to secure ever since the housing shortage started, that Mr. "Willie" R. Crockett had a hard task trying to keep his family under one roof.

William has at last secured rooms to his liking, and will move the latter part of next week.

HARTFORD.

The friends of Chauncey Royden, of Milford, Ct., are shocked to learn of his death, which occurred Saturday, February 19th. The funeral took place at his late residence, 21 Pond street, Tuesday afternoon, February 22d. Rev. Mr. Knoll Meyer conducted the services, assisted by Rev. Mr. G. Hefflon, who read from 1 Cor. 10:15. Mr. Alfred Stevenson, of New Haven, sang a hymn in sign language, which was beautiful, "Now the Laborer's task is O'er."

The pall bearers were Messrs. Alfred Stevenson and Philip Quinn, of New Haven, and Gilbert Marshall and Robert Sweeney, of Bridgeport.

Floral tributes were beautiful and fragrant; and mostly of carnations, hyacinths and narcissus backed with ferns.

About twenty deaf-mutes from Bridgeport, New Haven, Branford, and Hartford attended the funeral.

The deceased left a widow, Ada Beach Royden, two children, Clara and Harvey, his mother had a sister, Mrs. Sadie Blakney, all of Milford, and uncles, aunts and cousins

In the afternoon about ten deaf-mutes braved the snowstorm to attend the Silent Mission in Christ Church Cathedral, where Rev. Mr. Hefflon conducted the services.

After the services were over, Rev. Mr Hefflon went to the Union Station to take the train for Waterbury, where he was to conduct the Silent Mission, but the snowstorm knocked the trains out of schedule, preventing Rev. Hefflon from going to Waterbury.

The silent Mission Guild of Christ Church of Hartford was organized last year.

The Hartford Courant contains a portrait of Miss Marjorie Webster, the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Webster, 1003 Farmington Avenue, West Hartford, Ct.

She has been elected captain of the Freshman baseball team at Mount Holyoke College for the indoor season She is a graduate of the West Hartford High School of last June. She is the niece of Mrs. Samuel Cross, of Beverly, Mass., and Mrs. Flora Thumith, of Newbury port, Mass.

Atlanta—July 11-16.

The following will be of interest to delegates going to Atlanta from the East, and the many who propose to visit Atlanta for the Convention, July 11th–16th. The delegates from the East sail from New York, Thursday, July 7th, at 3 P.M. Vice-President Pach of the N. F. S. D., has reserved state rooms for thirty people, and those desiring accommodation should apply to him.

Replying to a letter from Mr. Pach, as Vice-President of the N. F. S. D., Mr. G. R. Angevine, the General Passenger Agent, writes as follows:—

The Savannah Line, in conjunction with the Central of Georgia Railway, offers the most attractive fares and service between New York and Atlanta.

We have steamers sailing from New York Mondays and Thursdays of each week, 3 P.M., due Savannah Thursdays and Sundays 6 A.M.

Connecting train leaves Savannah via Central of Georgia Railway 7:10 A.M., due Atlanta 3:50 P.M.

Returning, steamers are scheduled to sail from Savannah Tuesdays and Saturdays 4 P.M., due New York Fridays and Tuesday respectively 7 A.M. The trip Atlanta to Savannah may be made either by day or at night, depending on the time available and the convenience of the passenger.

The first class one-way fare between New York and Atlanta via this route, in either direction, is $35.41, including war tax, also meals and stateroom accommodation aboard ship while at sea, passenger and baggage transfer at Savannah and rail transportation between Savannah and Atlanta.

We should have a steamer sailing from New York Thursday, July 7th, which would fit in perfectly for those from this territory who contemplate attending the Atlanta meeting. Returning, however, it would be necessary either for delegates to leave Atlanta Friday night, the 15th, or use our steamer of July 19th from Savannah.

In the event that any of your members may elect to patronize this route, you may rest assured that no effort on our part will be spared to provide them service of such character as will leave no room for criticism.

Ardmore, Pa.

The gymnasium of the Lower Merion Y. M. C. A. was the arena for an exciting, close contest last Saturday night when the Silents Stars, of Philadelphia, made up of Deaf players, defeated the Comets in an extra period basketball game, 34 points to 32.

With several utility men in line, the Stars developed into a wonderful working combination with Dugan their crack player, constantly developing a whirlwind attack against the home team time and again. The Comets took the lead from the start with four points to their credit before the Stars evened things up and snatched the lead for a few minutes, when the Comets again forged ahead and held the lead until the end of the first half when the score stood 22-17. The termination of the first period was featured by a shower of field goals by Kurtz, Henderson, Griffith and Hoyle.

The Stars started the second with a rush brimful of action and reached the basket at will, getting into a lead, 24 to 22, but in the final minutes of play came another flurry and the Comets pulled up to a 30–30 tie.

In the extra period the Comets made the first tally and with three more minutes to go the visitors got down to a grim dash to recover, putting up a pretty passing game in which Dunner, Dugan, Ginley and Robinson played rings around the local boys and kept the ball within throwing distance of the basket constantly.

Jennings, guard for the visitors, put up a corking defensive game and tied the score by a pretty throw from under the basket, following by another that cinched the game. It was some sport.

Score and lineup:

Silent Stars		Comet Club
Dugan	Forward	Kurtz
Ginley	Forward	Henderson
Dunner	Centre	Griffith
Robinson	Guard	Hoyle
Jennings	Guard	Knox

Field goals—Dugan, 6; Ginley, 2; Dunner, 4; Robinson, 1; Jennings, 2; Kurtz, 4; Henderson, 3; Griffith, 2; Hoyle, 2; Knox, 2. Foul goals—Dunner, 1; Robinson, 2; Jennings, 1; Kurtz, 2; Griffith, 2; Hoyle, 2. Final score—34-32. Referee—Spink, Y. M. C. A.

BOSTON

About one hundred twenty-five deaf people of Boston and vicinity went to the Broadway Baptist Church in Cambridge to hear a lecture, given by the Rev Mr. Kempton, of Cambridge, Mass., on Sunday evening, February 6th, 1921. The Rev. Mr. Kempton gave a stereopticon lecture on the "Life of Christ," starting from the time. He was born in a manger to His Resurrection. The lecture was very interesting and instructive. Miss Emily Goldsmith, of Cambridge, interpreted the songs and the lecture for the deaf people. Most of the people from the Home in Everett were also present, under the care of Miss Fuller and Miss Crockett. The deaf people enjoyed the lecture very much, and after the lecture we went down stairs to the vestry and had a social hour with the pastor and the hearing congregation of the church. Refreshments were served to everybody by the young ladies of the church. The deaf people of Boston, thank Rev. Mr. Kempton and his congregation for their help and interest in them.

The deaf people of Boston and vicenity were shocked to hear of the sudden death of Miss Fannie Lakeman, at her sister's home in Brookline, February 8th, 1921, aged 46 years. She was a graduate of the Horace Mann School for the Deaf in Boston, and was a woman of unusual ability and character. She was buried from the North Church in Salem, Mass.

On Thursday, March 31st, 1921, the Deaf Camp Fire Girls of Boston will give a tableau and Camp Fire demonstrations in Trinity Church in Copley Square at 7.30 P.M. About seventy-five hearing girls will assist the deaf girls in their demonstrations. It is hoped that many of the deaf people will attend. They will be assured of a good entertainment. The tickets will be thirty-five cents.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman, of Brookline, managed a Whist Party and Supper at the Home for the Aged Deaf in Everett, Mass., on Tuesday February 22d, 1921. There were over 75 deaf people present and all enjoyed the party.

A Lenten Bible Pageant will be given on Sunday, March 20th, 1921, at 3 30 P.M., at the St. Andrew's Silent Mission, in Trinity Church, Boston.

WICHTIA, Kan.

A masquerade party was given on February 19th, by the Frats of Division No. 75, under the management of Messrs. W. E. Wait, C. W. Lee, L. Keach and A. Grier.

Cash prize winners were:—

1. Mrs. Hendricks, a "Sunflower girl."
2. Miss Fuller, "An Indian girl."
3. Misses Meyers and Wait, "A double Head."
4. Mr. Settles, "A Southerner."
5. Mr. Sleeper, "A tramp."

It was an enjoyable affair and netted the Division's local fund a nice sum.

A Social was given by the church on February 25th, the committee consisting of Mrs. Keach and Mrs. Luthrell, at the Baptist Church.

Ice cream and cake were served. All had a nice time.

The ladies of Wichita, have a Sewing Meeting every Thursday. There are twenty members, Mrs. Keach is chairman, and Mrs. C. W. Lee is Treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Bell and family motored to Oklahoma last Friday, where they will spend a few days visiting their relatives.

Miss Margaret Clark, of Winfield, is working at the overall factory.

A nice little surprise on Mrs. W. E. Wait by her friends two weeks ago. It was in the form of a "Shower," and the gifts she received were so nice. The hostess served refreshments before the crowd broke up and started homeward.

Too Much Noise.

AKRON O., February 23.—Deaf mutes employed at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company refuse to work in one department of the plant. "Too much noise," they say.

The department, that where the braided hose is made, is the noisest in all the concern. It seems almost impossible to keep normal help around the place, according to officials. The mutes, athough unable to hear, seem to be affected more than normal persons by the pounding, grinding machines, it is said, principally because of the vibrations.

Don't Fear to Praise.

How is it that words of praise are so grudgingly spoken, and so few persons are found in the retail trade of that desirable commodity?

Fault-finders are everywhere. You run against them at each street corner. They are as plentiful as thorns on a rose-bush, and quite as disagreeable to come in contact with. Blood-letting and leaving a scar seems to be their chief vocation in life; and their greatest joy is found in pointing out the typographical errors in the paper, or in directing the attention of the audience to the false notes in the song, or the ungrammatical expression in the speaker's language.

An editor was warmly praising a contributor for an article written for the paper, when a mutual friend, standing close by, said:

"Be careful what you say. You may make him vain."

"There is no fear of that," replied the other; "it's the true way to get the best from him."

There is a deal of sound philosophy in the remark. An ounce of praise will produce better results than a pound of blame. Many a boy would have become a brilliant success in life had a word of praise been given at the proper time.—Selected.

Dr. Edward Jenner.

Edward Jenner was born May 17. 1749. at Berkeley, Gloncester-shire, England, where he died January 26, 1823. He was first apprenticed to Daniel Ludlow, a surgeon of Sodburg, and in 1770 became a pupil of John Hunter in London, where he received the best part of his education. In 1773, Jenner returned to his native town to practice surgery, which he later abandoned for medicine, graduating in 1792 at the University of St. Andrews.

He made an extensive study of the tubercles found in human lungs, which he considered as hyatids. These curious researches would have been sufficient to attract attention by their novelty if Jenner had not made himself immortal in discovering vaccination, compared with which all his other titles to glory vanish. Erudites have claimed that he got his idea through Dr. Pew from Radaud Pommier, a French missionary from Montpelier, who is said to have witnessed vaccination in India. It is more probable, however, that Jenner, who had made some previous observation on cow pox, followed the advice of his friend, John Hunter, in studying that disease in relation to small-pox. He made his first experiment May 14, 1796, vaccinating young James Philips with lymph collected from the vesicles of cow-pox on the hand of Sarah Nelmes. The boy contracted cow-pox and proved refractory two months later to the inoculation of small-pox. It was thus that the benefits of vaccination were discovered.

In 1798, Jenner proclaimed his discovery to the world. Unlike other men of genius he met very little opposition. On the contrary, Parliament voted £10,000 in 1802, and £20,000 more in 1806, to indemnify him for his labors in promoting vaccination. Monuments were erected to him in various countries and he lived long enough to see vaccination adopted in the whole civilized world.
